History

In a land steeped in mythology, a metamorphosis has taken place. Almyra represents the transformation of Paphos Beach Hotel, built in 1973 as the first hotel in Pafos, legendary birthplace of Aphrodite.

Accommodation

While simple, practical and understated, Almyra's 188 rooms are also about comfort, style and convenience. The rooms offer a choice of garden or sea view and either a private terrace, balcony or floor-to-ceiling sliding windows. There are double rooms, junior suites, one and two bedroom suites and the luxuriously unique 'Kyma' Suites, which have a private terrace right on the seafront. Most rooms have walk-in showers.

Location

Almyra is set in eight acres of landscaped gardens on Cyprus' southwest coast, with uninterrupted views across the bay towards the medieval castle and harbour of Pafos. Within walking distance are the shops and cafes of modern Pafos and the archaeological sights of the old town, including the House of Dionysos with its stunning Roman mosaics. Transfer times: 20 minutes from Pafos Airport and 90 minutes from Larnaca Airport.

Concept

The hotel's relaunch as Almyra, meaning 'the taste of the sea', brings a complete reinvention of the resort experience. Contemporary style and comfort combine with state-of-the-art amenities, attending to every need of the modern traveller. Almyra's interiors possess a modern Mediterranean feel, with custom designed furniture and cool, light fabrics in natural tones. All rooms have a mini-bar, turndown service and hairdryer, as well as bathrobes, slippers and luxury toiletries in the ensuite bathrooms, espresso machines in all sea view rooms and suites. Amenities include satellite TV, radio, and complimentary high-speed Wi-Fi in all rooms, public areas and outdoors.

Interconnecting facilities are available between most room types, on request. Special care has been given to enhancing the family holiday experience, with dedicated facilities for children and spacious accommodation designed for sharing.

Baby and infant facilities are available (see our Baby Go Lightly Programme). All guests receive water in the room upon arrival.
